English	We have attached the next part of the Talk For Writing, The Truth About Trolls, task below. You can still listen to Pie Corbett and his colleagues at https://radioblogging.net/ too. It goes out live at 9.30am but if you are not ready to do it then, go to the website, click the 'Welcome to RadioBlogging.net' tab and the show will replay for you. You will then need to go to the 'Today's Show' tab to access the resources. The presenters explain everything.
Maths	Watch the maths videos at https://whiterosemaths.com/homelearning/year-3/ and then try the activities. If you want some more maths challenges, try the daily activities at http://www.iseemaths.com/home-lessons/ , BBC Bitesize or Oak National Academy.
Music and PE	Today is International Dance Day and that is what we want you to do. Put on your favourite music or try listening to something new and have a bit of a boogie. Let us know your favourite dance tunes via Teams so we can join in too. You could have a drying up disco, a baking ballet, a pick it up, put it away party or just a Wednesday wiggle!
First Aid	We're feeling rather sad as we should have been having a visitor today to teach us some first aid. Instead, we will have to watch this clip to see what we can learn. Maybe you could practise with someone at home. Stay safe and be careful though. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=wFvuaeSj1OA
Other ideas	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• 9am – Joe Wicks Workout on YouTube.• 11.30 – Oti Mabuse dancing on YouTube.• Read a book.• TTRockstars.• Go out and get some fresh air.• Help out at home.• Be kind.

The Truth about Trolls.

Engaging Adverbs Game

Adverbs can be used at the start of a sentence to make the information engage the reader. In 'The Truth about Trolls', Professor Folklore has used Interestingly, Surprisingly and Amazingly to start some of his sentences:

Interestingly, a few trolls do not have any horns at all.

Surprisingly, goats are not on the menu!

Amazingly, trolls like to have lots of fun.

Try and think of something interesting, something surprising and something amazing about your trolls and use adverbs based on these emotions to introduce this information when you write your own engaging sentences.

Remember to use a comma after the adverb at the start of the sentence.

Drop-in Game

Have a go at dropping extra information into a sentence using a relative clause that starts with who. In 'The Truth about Trolls', Professor Folklore first wrote:

One troll lived alone under a bridge.

Then he added in another bit of information using who.

One troll, who was very grumpy, lived alone under a wooden bridge.

What else could you 'drop-in' to tell the reader something else about the troll?

One troll, who _____, lived under a bridge.

Use this sentence to drop-in extra information for the reader starting with who.

Remember to use a comma before and after the dropped in information.

Tip – use a different coloured pen for your drop-in information.
